From the Principal:

"The Voices of Children"

"I believe the children are our future. Teach them well and let them lead the way. Show them all the beauty they possess inside." (Whitney Houston)

It is the job of teachers and parents to help children find their own voices. It is our job to explore ideas, discover new worlds, write poetry, tell stories, sing songs and paint pictures. Even within the confines of our packed curriculum, the true job of the teacher is to take children on a journey to discover their talent and potential. And, as we do this, we too learn and our students change our lives, our world and how we see it.

Children can often see clearly the faults of the adult world, can understand complex issues, stand up for their beliefs and do what they think is right. Sometimes children prick our consciences and show us a better way.

Malala Yousafzai was a schoolgirl aged 11 in Pakistan when she spoke out about the rights of all girls to be educated. The Taliban tried to assassinate her as she travelled home on the school bus. But they did not silence her. We all watched as she recovered from her injuries and spoke at the United Nations. She was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, the youngest person ever. She changed the lives of many children. She changed the world for the better.

Now we have Greta Thunberg, a young teenager, who has decided it is time the world moved faster to combat the threat of climate change. She went on strike from her school. Her message went round the world. Millions of children have gone on strike and marched in the streets, demanding we end this injustice to our planet, this injustice to future generations.

The lesson for all of us is never to underestimate a child's potential. They need everything we can give them at school to fulfil themselves and make the best of themselves.

Jonathan Bryan has cerebral palsy and locked-in syndrome. He cannot speak at all and relies on his family and helpers for everything. But his mother knew Jonathan could hear, see and smile. She believed he could communicate and used his ability to blink and move his eyes to teach him to read and write. After many years he could spell out words, make sentences and even make conversation. He has now written a book titled "Eye Can Write" and is a campaigner for the education of all children.

His message is simple: Never underestimate a child's potential. Give us the teaching, give us all we need to fulfil ourselves.

Each and every day at Sacred Heart I personally notice things about your children that inspire me to be a better person. To name just a few

- Lily Smith initiated Purple Day in 2019 to support research into Epilepsy.
- Leo Bailey has for many years raised funds for 'Leo's Lions'. Raising money for endangered lions.
- Last week Frankie Page raised money for MND research.
- Grade 6 children are collecting plastic bottle tops, and encouraging other classes, to enable prosthetic hands to be made via Envision.

In a less obvious way, but just as importantly, each and every day I engage with children who

- Use outstanding manners
- Smile with the intent of improving the lives of others
- Help out in and around our school
- Respect everyone regardless of what they look like or what they have done

If all of the adults in our world had the same approach to our world as the children of SHS do and the three children mentioned earlier in this article then our world would be a much more peaceful place.

Three children – Malala, Greta and Jonathan have all found their own voice and the courage to speak out and speak up. Their voices can change lives. Their voices can change the world.

The lesson we all can learn? Listen to the children. Listen to our children, listen to your children.

"Each day of our lives we make deposits in the memory banks of our children." (Charles Swindoll)

- use the Skoolbag app, fill out an eForm

Signing students out during the day

- You must sign your child out if you need to pick them up from school for an appointment or for your child to leave early.
- Please pre-arrange this with your child's class teacher and the teacher will send your child to the office at the required time so you can collect them from the office and sign them out.
