Feast Day....

Faith, fun, connections, laughter, teamwork and recognition of others were all alive and well last week at our Sacred Heart Catholic Primary School Feast Day celebrations.

We often share that we stand on the shoulders of those that have come before us and in particular the women and men who established our school. Nano Nagle and Edmund Rice are the co-founders of our school. The Presentation Sisters and Christian Brothers stood tall last week watching over the 447 children and 53 staff participating in our 151st Feast Day celebrations.

As a Catholic school we will always look for ways in which we can provide children with meaningful ways to engage with Jesus Christ. Last week we were proud to continue to enhance those relationships by gathering in prayer and reflecting the values of our co-founders in the activities and celebrations that followed.

'We didn't know we were making memories, we were just having fun....' (Anonymous)

How mistakes make us smarter....

We all know the feeling: watching our child struggle with homework, wanting to jump in and fix it. But hold on! Making mistakes is actually a crucial part of learning.

Here's why letting your child wrestle with a problem can be more helpful than giving them the answer right away:

- Mistakes are learning opportunities! Just like you might look something up when you forget a date, your child can learn from getting something wrong. It helps them understand what doesn't work and paves the way for figuring out what does.
- A "mistake-friendly" classroom (or home!) helps kids relax. Knowing it's okay to make mistakes takes the pressure off and encourages them to take risks and try new things.
- Celebrating mistakes shows your child it's okay to not be perfect. When you admit your own mistakes and turn them into learning moments, you set a great example!

Tips for Encouraging a Growth Mindset at Home:

- Let your child struggle (a little). If they're stuck, offer gentle guidance instead of giving away the answer.
- Turn mistakes into games! Count up the number of problems they got right and the ones they got wrong. This helps them see their progress and builds confidence.
- Celebrate the effort, not just the result. Did they try their best? Did they learn something new? That's what matters most!

Wellbeing Lessons

The UR Strong Language of Friendship, teaches us how to connect with and make new friends. This week, our Early Childhood classes have been practising how to be a 'Super Introducer'. This means making eye contact, smiling, sharing your name and asking the other person their name.

Encouraging children to use eye contact and smile is important in helping them develop crucial social skills. Eye contact shows respect, engagement and confidence, while smiling promotes positive interactions and empathy. These skills are essential for building relationships, understanding social cues and navigating social situations effectively.

Human beings are born seeking connection for emotional bonding and security. This is why positive human connection is so critical for the wellbeing of our children. Here you can see our grade ones practising the skills of a 'Super Introducer'. What a valuable reminder in today's technological world!
